CITY OF SÃO PAULO IN NUMBERS:

- With 12.04 million inhabitants, corresponding to 6% of the population, the city is among the world's 10 most populous.
- It concentrates 60% of millionaires in Brazil. It is considered one of the main markets for luxury goods in the world.
- São Paulo received approximately 15.08 million visitors in 2014, foreigners accounted for 30 %, coming mainly from Argentina, France, Colombia, Germany and the United States.
- In São Paulo happens the Brazil Grand Prix Formula 1, the only one in South America.
- 16th best restaurant in the world (D.O.M.).
- 441 helicopters, the largest fleet in the world.

ABOUT STATE OF SÃO PAULO

When talking about the state of São Paulo, the superlative form is a must. It is the state with the country's largest population, largest industrial complex, highest economic production, the one that receives the largest number of immigrants and, as expected, the most cosmopolitan state in South America. São Paulo was built thanks to hardworking people coming from all over the country and the world, who kept the vocation for work statewide.

São Paulo has 645 municipalities and a population of approximately 40 million inhabitants. With the country's best infrastructure and a highly skilled labor force, São Paulo can be called "Brazil's locomotive". All kinds of products are manufactured in the state, mainly high tech items. Its strong points, however, are not only related to the industry. Paulistas - São Paulo inhabitants - have also transformed agriculture and livestock farming into a potency. As regards the Economy, there are more than 258 malls spread nationwide, 155 of which in the Southern region, responsible for more than 300,000 job positions, aside from a comprehensive wholesale and retail chain nationwide. São Paulo's participation in the Brazilian banking system reaches almost 50% in volume terms. Also, Latin America's largest Stock Exchange is located in the state's capital.

ABOUT SECOVI-SP

Home to the Brazilian Real Estate Industry

Since 1946, Secovi-SP has served as a support network for the Brazilian real estate industry. Its multiple operations are decisive for the industry to be able to grow on solid and lasting foundations.

Secovi-SP is well known and respected in Brazil and abroad as a benchmark in urban development and marketing, leasing and management of residential condominiums, buildings and shopping malls.

The industry's major events are widely publicized or promoted by Secovi-SP. And since anything that happens in the real estate industry is usually important for society, Secovi-SP serves as an authoritative source of information for governments, media and the general public.

There are many reasons why Secovi-SP is known as the “home to the real estate industry” in Brazil. As an open, inclusive and responsible organization, it has become critically important for Brazilian society.

SOME OF THE ARCHITECTURAL MASTERPIECES OF SÃO PAULO

COPAN BUILDING

Copan is probably one of the most emblematic buildings of São Paulo. Architect Oscar Niemeyer became internationally known for his creative use of Modernism and his audacious forms. Copan's sinuous shape is a symbol of Brazilian's Modernist Architecture, and a trademark of Niemeyer's designs.

SAMPAIO MOREIRA BUILDING

In the first decades of the twentieth century, São Paulo's legislation had very rigid policies: all buildings had to be constructed with the same height. This regulation clearly limited the vertical growth of the city, delaying São Paulo's so desired progress. Inaugurated in 1926 and designed by the architect Christiano Stockler das Neves, Sampaio Moreira was the first building to change that horizontal pattern.

ITÁLIA BUILDING

One of the most famous modernists skyscrapers of São Paulo. Circolo Italiano San Paolo, a prestigious Italian-Brazilian organization, commissioned the building through a public contest in 1953. It was a bold idea: they wanted to build the highest skyscraper, of the entire Latin America, maybe of the world.

SÃO PAULO CULTURAL CENTER

The multi-layered steel and concrete building was designed, in 1982, by the architects Eurico Lopes and Luiz Telles, inspired by the structure of the Centre Georges Pompidou in Paris. The project was groundbreaking in Brazil because of its structural innovations.

TOMIE OHTAKE INSTITUTE

It combines art and architecture with extravagance and creativity. Determined to bring the new trends of contemporary art to São Paulo, the institute has become an architectural reference in the last ten years.

MAIN TOURIST ATTRACTIONS

SÉ CATHEDRAL – The biggest church in the city, in modified Gothic style, for 8.000 people.

LUZ STATION – Built with English iron structures for railway transports and opened in 1901. Today is also the home of the Portuguese Language Museum.

LIBERDADE – Japanese district, with decoration, restaurants and typical products' shops.

MERCADO MUNICIPAL (MUNICIPAL MARKET) – It's a beautiful building, built in 1932, where fruits, vegetables and poultry are sold. There are also restaurants and a famous cod pie (pastel de bacalhau).

THEATRO MUNICIPAL (MUNICIPAL THEATER) – Opened in 1911, with renascent facade. Presents opera, ballet and concerts.

SALA SÃO PAULO – Estação Júlio Prestes – was created to shelter the São Paulo State’s Symphonic Orchestra at a deteriorated zone in the downtown. The building, located in the district of Luz, is an example of neoclassical architecture from 1938, and was originally constructed as a train station hall.

PINACOTECA DO ESTADO (ART GALLERY) – Built in 1898, the museum has almost 4.000 pieces. Important exhibitions are also displayed.

IBIRAPUERA PARK – The park has, in its 1.9 milion m², a planetarium, museums (African Brazil and Modern Art Museum) and exhibitions (Bienal and Oca). Designed by the architect Oscar Niemeyer, the Ibirapuera Auditorium is specialized for musical exhibitions, with 800 seats and a huge stage. A 20 meter door in the backstage allows almost 15.000 people to watch the performances from the outside of the Auditorium.

PAULISTA AVENUE is a famous spot in São Paulo, as a financial and cultural center. On both sides of the avenue you will find impressive skyscrapers, shops and museums, including the famous Art Museum of São Paulo.

MASP - City icon and one of the most important museums in the Southern Hemisphere, the Museum of Art of São Paulo Assis Chateaubriand, or MASP as it is known, surprises São Paulo residents and tourists with a collection of 8.000 pieces by renowned artists, such as Cândido Portinari, Goya, Delacroix, Renoir and Monet.

JAPAN HOUSE – Created by the Japanese government, JAPAN HOUSE is a point of diffusion of all elements of genuine Japanese culture to the international community.

SÃO PAULO was one of the three selected locations, along with London in England and Los Angeles in the United States, to receive JAPAN HOUSE.

SHOPPING MALLS

There are about 53 all around the city. Check below some of them.

OSCAR FREIRE - One of the most charming addresses of São Paulo. There are more than 200 stores of unique national and international brands.

IBIRAPUERA SHOPPING - Close to the Bourbon Ibirapuera Hotel, Ibirapuera Park - one of the city's postcards - and Congonhas Airport, the Ibirapuera Shopping has become a reference point in the neighborhood. Over the years, the mall acquired the respect, trust and especially the loyalty of its consumers.

SHOPPING JK IGUATEMI - Retailers like Chanel, Dolce & Gabbana, Prada and Topshop are located in this luxury mall. With a modern and clean design it's great to come here and shop. Do not forget to visit the rooftop terrace and enjoy its view of Parque do Povo, a nice green area in the neighborhood.

SHOPPING CIDADE DE SÃO PAULO - Located at Avenida Paulista, 1230, Shopping Cidade São Paulo was inaugurated on April 30, 2015, is the capital's financial center and one of the most valued regions and is visited by different people. Has a gross leasable area of 17 thousands square meters with five floors, 160 stores with major retail brands.

FOOTBALL STADIUMS

PACAEMBU STADIUM / FOOTBALL MUSEUM - The most traditional stadium of São Paulo. Property of São Paulo City Hall, it held historical chapters of all the main clubs of the state, besides hosting the 1950's World Cup. Since 2008 it houses the Football Museum. Located under the bleachers, it concerns a unique space in the museums' world, which is dedicated to relate how sport's history is part of Brazilian's life.

MORUMBI STADIUM - Biggest particular stadium in the world, owned by São Paulo Futebol Clube. The club offers Morumbi Tour service, a guided visit that presents several premises of the stadium, including the grandstand, press room, locker room, and the large trophy room of one of the most victorious clubs of worldwide's football.

ALLIANZ PARQUE - The new Palmeiras' stadium replaced the former Palestra Italia (also known as Parque Antarctica). Now with capacity of 45.000 people for matches and 60.000 for concerts, it is a versatile multipurpose arena.

CORINTHIANS ARENA - It's known as the 2014's World Cup's stadium, that hosted six matches, including the opening match and one semifinal.

RESTAURANTS (MICHELIN GUIDE)

2 STARS

D.O.M - Atala isn't the only chef at D.O.M. He's gained world-wide fame as a type of Brazilian cuisine ambassador. Atala's team guided by subchefe Geovane Carneiro prepare creative dishes influenced by international and Brazilian cuisines. In the pantry, for example, truffles and foie gras have been replaced by jambu, tucupi and priprioca.

www.domrestaurante.com.br

1 STAR

ATTIMO - Leading Brazilian restaurateur Marcelo Fernandes is behind the project, and has installed renowned chef Jefferson Rueda in the kitchen, with a brief to meld rustic Italian recipes with native Brazilian ingredients, and vice versa. www.attimorestaurante.com.br

DALVA E DITO - After achieving international fame with D.O.M., Alex Atala invested in a project to place recipes from Brazilian cuisines onto a haute cuisine menu. www.dalvaedito.com.br

ESQUINA MOCOTÓ - A wall covered in graffiti by a popular Brazilian artist and the extensive use of wood from demolished buildings gives us an idea of the cuisine on offer here. The chef, the son of the founder of Mocotó, gives full flight to his imagination without forgetting its roots, with dishes such as braised pork belly with fava beans, vegetables and mustard greens and the house pork burger. The menu is concise but no less interesting than the original Mocotó nearby. For lunch, choose the executive menu which includes dessert and a glass of wine. www.mocoto.com.br

FASANO - Much of the success of the restaurant, the pioneer of the Fasano brand, is owed to the solid composition of the kitchen, headed by Salvatore Loi. Be it in the climate-controlled pasta station or in the preparation of the finest risotos in the country, the team doesn't err. The wine cellar, with more than 400 labels, is run by the famous sommelier Manoel Beato. www.fasano.com.br

HUTO - Here, you would be well advised to take the chef's advice and choose one of the three omakase menus (the Japanese word 'omakase' translates loosely as 'leave it up to us'). Show complete confidence in your host by enthusiastically ordering menu 3, savouring each and every 'surprise' dish until you ask the kitchen to stop, otherwise you won't stop eating. www.hutorestante.com.br

JUN SAKAMOTO - The restaurant is hidden on a residential street without name on the front, and indication of the reserved manner of Jun Sakamoto and especially his cuisine. At night he serves only eight people at his counter (it is best to reserve in advance). It is there that he uses top of the line ingredients in the preparation of the omakasê sequence, which includes very fresh fish.

KAN SUKE - The highlights on the menu are the superbly prepared sushi and sashimi - of those we tried, the carapau no maçarico, a type of mackerel sashimi which is covered in salt before being seared with a blowtorch (maçarico).

KINOSHITA - Chef Tsuyoshi Murakami's pantry only includes first class ingredients, following the kappo cuisine concept - one that favors fresh ingredients. Flying fish salted roe, Japanese mackerel and even Kobe beef (beef from Wagyu, a Japanese breed) are featured among them. www.restaurantekinoshita.com.br

KOSUSHI - The creativity of its dishes and the delicate presentation of its extraordinary veteran sushi master. The superb ceviche, served on a porcelain spoon, the transparent and finely cut slivers of "new style" sashimi, and the black anchovies (with chives and beetroot) will delight and surprise Kosushi's customers. www.kosushi.com.br

MANÍ - At Maní, their refined culinary skills are clearly in evidence in their creative, innovative and stimulating recipes such as jabuticaba chilled soup with cachaça-steamed crayfish, pickled cauliflower and amburana nuts. Fresh, delicate, refined and infinitely pleasurable. www.manimanioca.com.br

TÊTE À TÊTE - A restaurant with a restrained, modern and almost minimalist style that is pleasing on the eye. Dishes are innovative and highly personal, and are based on the very best local products, focused on preserving the ingredient's full flavours whilst adding interesting foreign influences. www.teteatete.com.br

TUJU - Come with an open mind and surrender to an unique experience where products of the utmost quality are allied with irrepressible creativity and technical skills. Vegetables which are hard to find in Brazil can be seen growing in strategically placed beds around the restaurant, while in the open-view kitchen, the talented team creates delicacies such as the epic Teresinha (orange cake and sorbet with cachaça mousse and cardamom crumble) www.tuju.com.br
